General Information about Data Processing by the Merz Group of Affiliated Companies

When you do business with a company of the Merz group (“Merz”), we know that you trust us to take care of your personal information. Trust is an important Merz value, and we aim to earn your trust not just by providing safe, effective pharmaceutical and medical devices, but also by responsibly managing your personal data. This Fair Information Notice (“Notice”) explains who is responsible for processing and caring for your personal data at Merz as well as details relating to when, where and how we use, protect, store, delete and sometimes transfer your personal data.

If you do not find the information you are looking for in this Notice, or if you simply have questions or need more information, please contact the Merz Privacy Office for the area where you reside. The full list of contact emails for the Merz Privacy Officers can be found in the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice.

Responsibility and Controllership

Merz is responsible for the personal data that you share with us or that we receive about you and for processing that data.

Merz is a “controller” under the terms of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 (General Data Protection Regulation – “GDPR”) and EU Member State laws. “Controller” is the legal term for the company, in this case Merz, which, alone or jointly with others, determines the purposes and the means by which your personal data are processed.

In the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice, you can see which Merz affiliate company or companies are the controller in each country where we do business. Non-EU countries may not use the term “controller,” but nonetheless may place similar legal requirements on Merz to protect personal data we collect about you.

You can peruse Merz’s affiliated locations here. To see the cities in each country or region where Merz operates, simply click on the region, and then scroll through the “all cities” bar.

Merz complies with applicable local and regional privacy laws in the countries where we do business, including the CCPA, LGPD and the GDPR and all European Union and Member State laws regarding data privacy and data protection.

Why We Process Your Personal Data

Like most companies, we process your personal data for several legitimate reasons related to our business. In general, we process personal data for the following specific business reasons:

- (1) To complete a sales transaction;
- (2) To honour an agreement or contract between you and Merz;
- (3) If, after we provide you with fair information about the processing, you give us express consent to do so;
- (4) To comply with the law (e.g., national drug safety reporting);
- (5) To protect your vital interest (i.e., your health);
- (6) To protect the public interest (e.g., drug safety monitoring); and
- (7) Because we have a legitimate interest in processing your personal data (e.g., advertising, marketing materials, newsletters).

Marketing and Advertising

Merz manufactures and sells some of the best pharmaceutical products and medical devices in the world. We sometimes process personal data to make healthcare professionals, pharmacies, patients, and consumers aware of our products with marketing and advertising materials. We do this only when you give us explicit consent to do so or, if consent is not required, when we have a legitimate reason to do so and that reason does not outweigh your privacy rights. If you withdraw your consent for or object to direct marketing by us, we will cease such marketing.

How We Process and Protect Your Personal Data

In the sections below, we describe how we process and protect your personal data when you engage with Merz in specified ways. To find the information relevant to you, scroll to the section(s) that describe(s) your relationship with Merz.

The amount and type of personal data you share with Merz, or that Merz collects about you, depends on our relationship with you. Below are types of interactions with Merz where you may share personal data with us or where we may collect personal data about you. If you interact with us in more than one way, please review each section that pertains to your relationships with Merz.

Merz Commercial Website Visitors

General Information

Merz publishes numerous websites worldwide. Most of these are local or regional websites that provide information about Merz products and services available in the specific country or region. Most Merz affiliated websites maintain a Privacy Notice that is specific to the website. The controller for each website is identified on the site and is typically the local Merz company that maintains the website.

The Privacy Notice on each webpage contains the best, most specific, information about our privacy practices relative to that webpage. If this Notice and the Privacy Notice on the webpage you are viewing conflict, then the policies and notices on the website itself shall prevail.

There are some general practices common to most Merz websites. When you visit a Merz website, our servers automatically store data sent by your computer's software and internet browser, including the type and version of internet browser and operating system you use, the Merz website and sub-websites you access, the date and time of such access and your internet protocol address ("IP address"). Merz uses these data to provide you with access to the website in a readable form, to identify and fix any technical problems that may arise, and to prevent and, if necessary, act against, any abuse of our services. We generally use an anonymized form of this data to analyse site statistics so that we can improve the look, user-friendliness, and content of our websites.

In some cases, we partner with third parties who may host or manage our websites. When these partners have access to your data, we contract with them to require that they only process your data according to our instructions and applicable law. The legal basis for this processing is Merz's legitimate interest in providing customers, patients, and consumers with information about our products and our company.

Find a Provider / Provider Locator Services

If you are a patient or consumer who uses the Provider Locator on Merz's websites, we will process geo-location data that you provide, such as your postal code or your IP address, in order to identify healthcare practitioners who use Merz products in your geographic area. If you click on the "request more information" button, the information you provide in the web form (e.g., name, email, phone number and postal code) will be sent to the selected medical provider, who is responsible for contacting you according to your request. Merz processes this data to help you get access to medical providers who use Merz products. Merz's legal basis for processing this data is its legitimate interest helping you find physicians that provide Merz products or (if you request more information) taking steps prior to entering into a contract with you.

For more information about how Merz uses Google Maps in its Provider Locator, see the Google Maps section of this Notice below.

If you do not wish to use the Find a Provider feature, simply refrain from clicking the Find a Provider button and do not enter your postal code.

Website 'Contact Us' Forms

If you contact Merz directly, e.g., via a contact form on a website or via email, then the personal data you transmit to Merz as a result, e.g., your email address, your name, and the content of your enquiry will be used for processing your respective inquiry. Your data may be passed on to other Merz companies if necessary to respond to your enquiry. An overview of the Merz companies is provided in the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice. In this case we are, depending on the content of your inquiry, processing your data either to fulfil a contract or based on Merz's legitimate interest.

If your data is transferred outside the EU/EEA to process your request, then Merz will ensure the lawfulness of the transfer via the mechanisms described in the International Transfers of Personal Data section found later in this Notice.

Cookies and Related Tracking Technologies

Merz websites use data cookies to simplify and improve your experience of our webpages. Cookies are small text files that are stored on your computer or server, that exchange settings-related information with Merz's systems. A cookie normally contains the name of the domain from which the cookie data were sent, information about the cookie's age, and an alphanumeric identifier.

If you visit a password-protected area of a Merz website, for example, the Merz job board website, session cookies are used for the duration of your visit. These enable Merz to make your experience simpler by using a single sign-on method as a means of authenticating you across the password-protected areas of websites. This method enables you to move around the website's entire password-protected area without having to log in to each area separately.

Cookies are also used to collect information about how you navigate Merz's websites, and what specific areas and products interest you. This information, in turn, enables Merz to improve its websites and the online experiences of website users. For this purpose, the information stored in the cookies is neither used to identify you nor is it combined with other stored personal data about you. Instead, we use aggregate cookie data to analyse and improve our website's relevance and your user experience. The legal basis for the use of cookies in this way is Merz's legitimate interest in providing a good, safe experience on our website.

You can deactivate or restrict the transmission of cookies by using the Cookie Preference Centres available on Merz websites or by changing your internet browser settings to disable the use of cookies. You may also use your browser to delete any cookies already stored. If you choose to deactivate or delete cookies for the Merz websites, you may not be able to make full use of all website functions.

Google Analytics

We use Google Analytics to understand how users interact with our websites and to improve how our business communicates its commercial message online. Google Analytics is a service provided by Google (Google LLC, 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View or, for the European Economic Area, Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, 4 Barrow St, Dublin, D04 E5W5, Ireland). Google Analytics uses cookies, which transmit anonymized or truncated personal data to a Google server in the U.S. The information about our websites generated by a Google Analytics cookie helps us evaluate the use of the website, compile reports on website activity, and provide Merz with other services relating to website activity and internet usage.

Merz websites in the European Union, European Economic Area and Switzerland use Google Analytics with the added code "anonymize IP". This means that user IP addresses collected by the Google Analytics cookie are truncated within Member States of the European Union, and states party to the Agreement on the European Economic Area before they are transmitted to the U.S. This means that Google cannot use your IP address to identify your specific device or location. Only under exceptional circumstances is the full IP address transmitted to a Google server in the U.S. and then truncated there.

In Europe, your consent is the legal basis to process the personal data in this regard. Further, Merz's legitimate interest in using the data collected by Google Analytics is to understand the effectiveness, reach and usability of its websites.

You can find more information about Google's data protection practices and terms of use by visiting Google's websites here:

<https://www.google.com/analytics/terms/us.html>

<https://policies.google.com/privacy?hl=en>

You can prevent Google from collecting and processing cookie-generated data relating to your use of a website by downloading and installing the browser plug-in available at the following link:
<http://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout>

You can also deactivate or restrict the transmission of cookies by changing your internet browser settings. You can delete cookies already stored at any time, either by manually deleting each cookie or setting your browser to do so automatically. If you want to accept cookies used by Merz, but not cookies used by Merz's service providers and partners, you can select the "Block only third-party cookies" setting in your browser. For each website, you can withdraw your consent in the Cookie Preference Centre.

Google AdWords and Conversion Tracking

Some of our websites use Google AdWords, a service of Google (Google LLC, 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View or, for the European Economic Area, Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, 4 Barrow St, Dublin, D04 E5W5, Ireland). This service allows us to display ads to you that correspond to your interests.

To do this, Google drops a data cookie or web beacon that tracks which websites you visit, the content you view and technical information about the browser and operating system, referring websites, visit time and other information on the use of the online offer.

Merz then receives an individual "conversion cookie" from Google that places an advertisement on the website. The information Merz obtains through the conversion cookie is used by Google to generate aggregate, anonymous conversion statistics for us for the purpose of helping us measure the effectiveness of our advertising. We do not receive any information from Google that personally identifies you.

Google processes the data it gathers from you by using a unique ID code, creating what is known as a pseudonymous profile. This means that Google does not display ads to an identified person, but to the cookie owner, regardless of who that cookie owner is. This does not apply if you have explicitly consented to allow Google to process your data without this pseudonymization. The information collected about users is transmitted to Google and stored on Google's servers in the United States. In Europe, your consent is the legal basis to process the personal data in this regard. Further, Merz's legitimate interest in using Google AdWords is optimizing our online advertising effectiveness.

For more information about Google's data usage and advertising practices, please review Google's Ads Help centre here: <https://support.google.com/ads/answer/2662922?hl=en> and you can opt-out of receiving Google advertisements via Google's Ads Settings here: <https://adssettings.google.com>. For each website, you can withdraw your consent in the Cookie Preference Centre.

The Facebook Pixel

Some of our websites use remarketing Facebook Pixels, a service of Facebook (Facebook Inc., 1 Hacker Way, Menlo Park, CA 94025, USA or, for the European Economic Area, Facebook Ireland Ltd., 4 Grand Canal Square, Grand Canal Harbour, Dublin 2, Ireland). This service allows us to display ads to you that correspond to your interests.

To do this, Facebook may use a storage technology called a pixel to collect information about your visit to our website and elsewhere on the Internet, as well as the content you view, the actions you take on the website, technical information about the browser and operating system, referring websites and ads, visit time, and other information of the use of the online offer. Facebook then uses this information to provide measurement services to Merz that do not identify you personally. Facebook also uses this information to target ads to you and to others like you. The Privacy Notice on each Merz website will provide more specific information about whether the site uses Facebook Pixel. In Europe, your consent is the legal basis to process the personal data in this regard.

For more information about the Facebook Pixel, including how to opt out, please visit Facebook's website here: <https://www.facebook.com/help/568137493302217>. For each website, you can withdraw your consent in the Cookie Preference Centre.

Google Maps

Some Merz websites use the Google Maps API, which uses your location to provide additional services and features that you choose to interact with—for example, displaying the locations of Merz companies and medical specialists near you. If you access Google Maps on Merz websites, technical data pertaining to your accessing the system (e.g., your postal code or IP address) may be transmitted to servers of Google (Google LLC, 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View or, for the European Economic Area, Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, 4 Barrow St, Dublin, D04 E5W5, Ireland).

If you do not wish to use Google Maps you should not use the integrated Google Maps feature in our websites or enter your address into the medical specialist locator tool.

Google Fonts

In order to reduce the loading times required by Merz websites, some use fonts ("Google Fonts") downloaded from the servers of Google (Google LLC, 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View, CA 94043, USA or, in the European Economic Area, Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, 4 Barrow St, Dublin, D04 E5W5, Ireland). Generally, if you access Merz's websites, then anonymous technical data pertaining to your accessing system will be transmitted to Google where it is cached and stored for one day. In some European affiliates, we do not send data back to Google when using Google Fonts instead we upload the fonts from a Merz server. Merz's legitimate interest in using Google Fonts is to increase processing speed when retrieving fonts.

In order to protect the information you provide in forms on our website, some of our websites use the "reCAPTCHA" service from Google (Google LLC, 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View, CA 94043 United States or, in the European Economic Area, Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, 4 Barrow St, Dublin, D04 E5W5, Ireland). With this service, we can differentiate between information entered into a form by a human and information entered by an automated machine ("bot").

To the best of our knowledge, reCAPTCHA processes your URL, IP address, website activity, operating system, browser, length of visit, cookies, display instructions and scripts. reCAPTCHA also captures the mouse motion used to check the box. These data are transferred to Google to prevent bots from completing web forms. Merz's legitimate interest in using reCAPTCHA is protecting our forms from bots.

The information obtained via the reCAPTCHA service is used in accordance with Google's Usage Terms and Conditions: <https://policies.google.com/privacy?hl=en>

YouTube Videos

Some of our websites feature YouTube videos. YouTube is a service offered by Google (Google LLC, 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View, CA 94043, USA or, in the European Economic Area, Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, 4 Barrow St, Dublin, D04 E5W5, Ireland). Merz uses YouTube's advanced data protection settings to integrate videos. In this way, technical data pertaining to your accessing system, for example, information about what video you viewed, are only transmitted to Google if you click on the video. Merz's legitimate interest in processing personal data via YouTube is so that we may provide relevant business videos to our users.

You can prevent the transmission of your data to Google by not clicking on the YouTube videos integrated into the Merz websites.

Social Media Plug-Ins

Some Merz websites use plug-ins of social media platforms such as Facebook, Twitter, Google, Instagram, and LinkedIn, so that you may share your experience with Merz on social media. We use this information to improve our business and to provide you with content more relevant to your life and interests as expressed online. Social media plug-ins are identifiable by the logo of the respective plug-in provider that they feature and, in the case of Facebook, also by the additional “Like” and “Share” buttons.

In most countries where Merz operates, if you are signed into social media when you click on a social media plug-in, your IP address and other activities may be stored by your social media provider(s). In Austria, Germany, and Switzerland, we prevent this using either a two-click method and/or “Shariff” technology. Outside of these three countries, you may prevent your IP address from being shared automatically by logging off of your social media accounts before navigating to websites that use social media plug-ins. The plug-in providers explain the information obtained by plug-ins and how you can limit it on their websites, which you can access here:

- Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/about/privacy>
- Twitter: <https://twitter.com/en/privacy>
- Google: <https://policies.google.com/privacy?hl=en>
- Xing: <https://privacy.xing.com/en/privacy-policy>
- WhatsApp: <https://www.whatsapp.com/legal?eea=1#privacy-policy>
- Instagram: <https://help.instagram.com/519522125107875>

You can limit or prevent transmitting your data to social media plug-in providers by using the tools and methods provided on the plug-in providers' respective websites (see links above).

Merz Social Media Pages and Sites

Merz affiliates sometimes use social media platforms such as Facebook Fan Pages, to market our products. Where required by law, Merz is a controller of its Fan Pages. However, in all other respects, the operator of the respective social media platform is the controller under data protection law for all types of processing performed on the platform itself.

Information about the type of data the respective platform processes and the purposes for which it does so can be found in the respective platform's privacy notice. Merz has only limited influence on the data processing carried out by such operators. If there are areas in which we at Merz can exert influence, then we endeavour to ensure that, within those areas, your data is processed in as data protection-friendly a manner as possible.

Data entered on our social media pages, for example comments, videos, images, likes, and public messages are published by the operator of the respective social media network and we reserve the right to delete such content should this be necessary (e.g., due to inappropriateness or regulatory guidelines). We may also use the social media platform to communicate with you. The legal basis for this processing is Merz's legitimate interest in promoting our products to HCPs, consumers, and patients.

We also target advertising based on certain demographics, interests, behaviours, and locations. These data are provided to us by the operator of the respective social media platform in anonymous form. We can only influence statistics provided to us by the operator of the pertinent social media platform to a limited extent; we cannot deactivate such statistics. The legal basis for this processing is also Merz's legitimate interest in promoting our products to HCPs, consumers, and patients.

To prevent the operators of social media platforms from collecting information from you and then using it to target you with behaviour-related advertising, we recommend that you review the privacy settings of each social media channel and adjust the account settings accordingly. You can also deactivate or restrict the transmission of cookies by changing your internet browser settings accordingly.

Healthcare Providers (“HCPs”), Dispensers, and Pharmacists

General Information

If you are a healthcare professional, particularly doctor or pharmacist, and you contact Merz as a prescriber, dispenser, or consultant, we will process the following information about you:

- Your name, title, business name, and the name of your employees who are authorized to do business with Merz
- Your medical or pharmaceutical license number
- Your business address, telephone number and email address(es)
- Merz product(s) you have ordered
- Payment information
- Information gathered during sales calls to your business by our sales team
- Any requests you have made for medical information about a Merz product
- Any potential safety risks or technical quality issues you report
- Information about training you received from us
- Information related to Merz-sponsored events you attend, and the relevant supporting documents connected to such Merz-sponsored events
- Personal information required for Merz’s due diligence process, including but not limited to questionnaires, supporting documents, identification, and proof of licensure and/or education
- Information required for transparency reporting, where required by law
- Any publications by trade press or other media relating to your practice or use of Merz products

We process this information to establish or maintain a business relationship with you and sometimes in order to fulfil the terms of a contract with you. If you expressly agree that we may do so, we may also publish the contact details of your practice or pharmacy on our websites so that patients can find your practice or pharmacy where Merz products may be purchased or Merz services are provided.

If you have expressly consented that we may do so or where it is in our legitimate business interest, we will send you marketing and advertising materials and notices of Merz’s promotions. As always, you may withdraw your consent, opt-out, or object to this processing without adverse effect and without affecting the lawfulness of processing before your withdrawal of consent, opt-out or objection by contacting the Merz privacy officer for your country at the email address listed in the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice.

Merz sometimes receives contact and address information and medical licensing data about potential Merz customers from third party service providers. We process this data to verify that you are a licensed medical professional who may lawfully prescribe or dispense our products and to identify providers who may have an interest in our products.

If you are a clinical investigator conducting a trial on a Merz-developed product, we will process data contained in your CV in addition to data you record in the course of your study work. Further information about personal data processing in the context of an investigational study will be set out in your study-related contracts with Merz. If we submit the findings of a study in which you are a clinical investigator for approval by a government body, your personal data will be transferred to that governing body as specified in the study documents, which may be located outside the European Union/European Economic Area.

To find information about how Merz lawfully transfers data outside the European Union/European Economic Area, see the International Transfers of Personal Data section later in this Notice.

Credit Card Purchases of Merz Products

If you use a credit card to purchase a Merz product, we will process your contact, financial and transactional data in order to perform a contract with you and because doing so is necessary to complete the sale of our products. We use reasonable organizational and technical measures to secure your credit card data and limit the disclosure of such data to only those who have a need to see the data in order to process your transaction.

Merz Sponsored Events

Merz may gather personal data necessary to help you plan travel to or from the event and/or coordinate lodging. You may be asked to sign a consulting or other agreement with Merz further specifying the legitimate basis for your attendance at the event and for Merz's processing of your personal data. This consulting agreement governs your relationships with Merz with respect to the referenced event. In some instances, Merz partners with travel agencies and governmental agencies to ensure your lawful and safe passage to our event. When Merz transfers your personal data to these partners it is for the limited purpose of securing your attendance at our event and is governed by agreements between Merz and our partners requiring that our partners comply with our instructions and all applicable data protection rules and regulations. The legal basis for this processing is performing a contract.

While participating at a Merz-sponsored medical event you may be asked to sign video or photography consents. The terms of the consent you execute governs how Merz will treat your personal data for the purposes described in the consent. As always, you have the right to withdraw your consent without negative affect and without affecting the lawfulness of processing based on consent before its withdrawal by contacting the data privacy officer for your country listed in the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice.

Virtual Conferences, Webinars, and Video Calls

Merz may offer virtual events for educational, marketing, customer support, or other purposes. In some cases, these video calls or webinars will be recorded. In such cases, Merz will notify you of the recording prior to or at the time of your joining the virtual event and, where necessary, will obtain your consent prior to recording. If the content of those notices or consents conflict with the terms in this Notice, those other notices or consents will control. If you wish to attend an event but do not wish to have your image or voice recorded, you may turn off your webcam and mute your line. The specific data protection and data privacy practices of Merz's web-based service providers, such as Cisco WebEx, are set forth in our service providers' privacy notices on their websites.

Find a Provider / Provider Locator Services

Some of our product-related websites allow potential patients to provide their postal code and other geographic location data to find a healthcare provider or pharmacy near them that provides Merz products ("Provider Locator"). If you are a healthcare provider and you expressly consent to participate in our Provider Locator, we will process and publish your information on our websites. Visitors to the site who search for medical providers near them who use Merz products will be able to see your name, practice name, street address, telephone number and the Merz product lines you offer. Patients and consumers also can request that your practice contact them by clicking on "request more information" on your practice listing in the Provider Locator and completing a request form. The legal basis for this processing is performing a contract (if such is in place with you) or (in all other cases) Merz's legitimate interest in providing HCPs information about our products and services.

If you are a healthcare provider who no longer wishes to participate in the Find a Provider feature, please email the privacy officer for your country listed in the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice.

Online Accounts and Access-Restricted Portions of Merz Websites

Certain areas of Merz's websites are restricted to medical professionals and require registration. If you are a medical professional who is registering to use restricted areas of a website, we require you to provide information including your name, practice name, email address and physical address. Some sites may require additional information as described in the relevant website privacy notice. You are also required to create a unique username and password. Merz uses this information to create and manage user accounts and identify authorized users. Merz also sometimes processes this data to perform a contract, where we have a contract with you. In some instances, where you indicate your consent, we will use your registration data to provide you with marketing materials. We also share your registration data with other Merz affiliated companies inside and outside the EU and the EEA for sales and marketing purposes. If you would like to withdraw your consent for Merz to send you advertising materials, as described, you may email the Merz privacy officer for the country where you reside and withdraw your consent without affecting the lawfulness of processing based on consent before its withdrawal.

If you are a European resident and your personal data is transferred outside the EU and EEA, Merz uses the measures described in the International Transfers of Personal Data section, below, to ensure a lawful transfer.

Restricted Websites for Healthcare Practitioners

If you are in a geographical area where it is available, and you sign up to use an online portal for purchasing, training, marketing materials or other restricted services, Merz will collect your name, username, password, and contact details about your practice in order to provide you access to this restricted website. Merz restricted website portals use a single sign on technology to allow you to navigate between features on the portal without having to re-authenticate you each time you leave one area, e.g., digital marketing assets, to navigate to another area, e.g., self-service. For this single sign on function to work, you will have to accept cookies by clicking that you approve their use via the “Accept” button on the Cookie Notice banner. As with other Merz websites, cookies are used to simplify and improve your experience of our web pages. These cookies are necessary for the site to function, which allows you to do business with Merz. You may deactivate your account by logging into your Account Settings and deactivating it there.

There are several modules that require you to affirmatively opt-in by checking a box indicating that you would like to participate in a service Merz is offering. The specific terms of each opt-in along with the Privacy Notice on each module provide the best and most concurrent information about our privacy practices within those features. With respect to websites that offer training to healthcare providers, Merz shares registration data as described in the website’s Privacy Notice and shares it within the Merz Group of Affiliated Companies for the legitimate business reason of understanding our customers’ business needs and training background.

To find information about how Merz lawfully transfers data outside the European Union/European Economic Area, see the International Transfers of Personal Data section found later in this Notice. For additional information on cookies and other technical tools and plug-ins we use on our websites, please see the Merz Commercial Website Visitors section above.

Merz-Related Software Applications (“Merz Apps”)

Healthcare practitioners should carefully review the Privacy Policy and the privacy settings for any Merz App that you use in your practice. The Privacy Policy in the Merz App and the privacy and security settings on the device on which the Merz App is downloaded will control. Generally, Merz Apps will collect whatever personal data healthcare providers enter into the App, including, username and password and, if the healthcare provider chooses, identified patient data. Healthcare providers should be careful to comply with all local medical secrecy and consent laws before entering identified patient data into a Merz App and should keep devices containing Merz Apps with patient data stored locally on them physically secured and password protected.

Whether the personal data is encrypted depends on the device settings used by the healthcare provider. Likewise, whether the personal data entered into the Merz App is transferred from the device depends on a number of factors such as whether the Merz App is backed up to local or cloud storage by a healthcare provider or whether the healthcare provider transfers the personal data on the Merz App to consumers or patients via an electronic medical record or email function. Compliance with data protection and privacy laws with respect to transferring identified patient data from a Merz App to a consumer or patient is entirely the responsibility of the healthcare provider and the healthcare provider is the best source of fair information about his or her own personal data practices using a Merz App.

In some instances, anonymous, aggregate patient data may be shared with Merz for the purpose of improving functionality, the user experience and for anonymous market research, but Merz does not collect identified or pseudonymous patient data from Merz Apps.

Merz Newsletters

If you subscribe to a Merz paper or electronic newsletter, Merz will process your contact information in order to provide the newsletter to you, e.g., your email or postal address. These data are used for purposes of sending you promotional materials about Merz. You have the right to unsubscribe from the Merz newsletter(s), via the link provided in the newsletter. Unsubscribing from a newsletter does not affect the legality of any processing of your contact information that took place prior to the date of unsubscribing. It also does not affect the legality of Merz processing your personal data in order to fill product orders or perform a contract.

If you register for the newsletter via a Merz website, Merz may record the IP address of the device used to access the website system, the date and time of your registration, and the date and time of the email verification. These are used to detect the possible misuse of your email address.

Our electronic newsletters sometimes contain “web beacons.” A web beacon is a miniature graphic image that is embedded in an email in HTML format. Based on the embedded web beacon, Merz can recognize whether and when the recipient opened the newsletter, and which links contained in the newsletter he/she clicked on. Data collected through web beacons are also stored and processed anonymously for statistical purposes. The corresponding statistics are used to optimize the newsletter dispatch process and to better align the content of future newsletters with interests of recipients.

We may share your data with an agency partner providing us with technical assistance when sending you our newsletter. If we do so, the partner will be obligated to process your data only as we instruct and consistent with applicable law. If this processor is outside the EU or EEA, then we comply with cross border transfer rules as described in the International Transfers of Personal Data section found later in this Notice.

Transparency and Reporting Laws

Merz may also process your personal data in order to comply with legal provisions on transparency and reporting obligations that apply within the pharmaceutical sector. If you or one of your patients submits a complaint or reports that one of our products has had an adverse effect, then we will process your personal data to the extent required to handle the complaint. Where we are legally obliged to do so, we also forward pseudonymous personal data relating to a complaint to the competent supervisory authorities for pharmaceuticals and medical devices. If necessary, Merz will also process your data in order to comply with statutory transparency requirements regarding the reporting of benefits provided by Merz to you (e.g., at conferences or similar events) and in accordance with export and money laundering laws.

Side Effect or Injury Reporting

If your patient experiences any unwanted side effects when using our products, we encourage you to contact us immediately. Reporting such situations is very important from a public health perspective and is in the legitimate interest of both Merz and the public at large. If you believe that your patient may have experienced adverse effects while using our products, we ask you to report this as follows:

- In the US: product.safety@merz.com
- In the EU: product.safety@merz.de or ax-safety@merz.de
- In Switzerland: quality@merz.ch
- In the UK: UKdrugsafety@merz.com
- In LATAM: farmacovigilanciamb@merz.com
- In APAC:
 - In Australia and New Zealand: safetyanz@merz.com
 - In China: safety.china@merz.com
 - In Korea: safety@merz.kr

- In Philippines: safety.ph@merz.com

If you contact us to report that your patient suffered a potential side effect, we will collect and process various types of health-specific data relating to your patient. These data may include the treatment your patient received and side effects themselves as well as all relevant medical information about your patient's age, gender, other medications your patient takes, and medical history. Patient data and your reporter details may be forwarded to other Merz companies as described below in accordance with the applicable laws for the exclusive purpose of investigating your report and understanding how our drug or device may have caused it.

If you are a European Economic Area or Swiss resident, your data will be forwarded to Merz Pharmaceuticals GmbH in Frankfurt am Main, Germany, which, within the Merz companies (outside the United States), is responsible for managing reports of side effects or injury. Merz Pharmaceuticals GmbH submits all reports of adverse reactions received from within Europe to the European Medicines Agency. Safety reports within the United States and Latin America are reported to Merz North America, Inc., and its affiliated companies and, if legally required, to the United States Food and Drug Administration and relevant Canadian, South American, and Mexican authorities. All global Merz affiliates will report adverse events to the local regulatory authorities as required by law. The Merz Group provides regulatory authorities the minimum necessary personal data to comply with public safety and drug regulation laws. The legal basis for the processing is to establish compliance with legal obligations to which Merz is subject.

For public health reasons, reports of adverse events are kept until the legally required retention period has expired and are then deleted.

Technical (Non-Injury) Problem Reporting

Your complaints help us improve the quality of our products. Accordingly, we process personal data you have made available to us (e.g., your personal data, contact details, and your correspondence with us) solely for the purpose of examining the quality issues you have reported and/or to clarify the details with you. Merz forwards only unidentified technical data included in your complaint to other Merz companies and contracting parties to improve any quality issues with our products. In most cases, your identified personal data is not transmitted, but rather remains solely at the Merz affiliate to which you made the report and will be erased after the legally required retention period elapses.

Patients, Consumers, and Users of Merz Products

Purchases of Merz Products

If you use a credit or debit card to purchase a Merz product, we will process your contact, financial and transactional data in order to perform a contract with you and because doing so is necessary to complete the sale of our products. We use reasonable organizational and technical measures to secure your card data and limit the disclosure of such data to only those who have a need for the data in order to process your transaction.

Merz-Sponsored Contests or Campaigns

From time to time, Merz holds competitions, lotteries, and other such promotional events and campaigns. Unless otherwise specified in data protection regulations pertaining to the respective competition, promotion, event, or campaign, any personal information that you provide us as part of your participation will be used to administer the competition, promotion, event, or campaign (e.g., determining the winner, notifying the winner, sending the prize). The legal basis for this processing is performing a contract.

In some cases, with your consent, we will use personal information you provided as a part of your participation in the contest to contact you with other Merz contests or promotions and information about Merz products. If you have consented to share information with Merz you may at any time revoke your consent without future effect; such revocation will not put you at any disadvantage whatsoever. To revoke consent, you may simply send a corresponding written notification to the body specified on the declaration of consent, or to datapriva^c@merz.com, whichever is applicable.

Once the competition or promotion is over, your data will be deleted, unless you have consented to allow Merz to process your data for promotional purposes beyond the time period of the contest. Where the prizes are objects, the data of any winners will be kept for as long as the respective statutory warranty claims apply so that we may arrange rectification or exchange should the prize be defective.

For further details, please refer to the data privacy notices provided as a part of the specific contest or campaign in which you are participating. If this Notice and the privacy notice of a specific contest or campaign conflict, then the latter shall prevail.

Clinical Study Participants

General Information

If you participate in a Merz-sponsored clinical trial, Merz processes your personal data for the primary purpose of conducting clinical research because it has a legal obligation to do so and, with respect to special categories of data such as health and genetic information, because it is in the interest of public health and ensures high standards of quality and safety of health care and medicinal products and medical devices.

As part of the respective clinical trial, you will receive more detailed information on the scope of personal data processing in your informed consent document. The information you are given for your specific trial controls your situation. The information provided here is general and will be supplemented or altered by the informed consent you execute prior to becoming a study participant.

The personal data collected and processed includes your name, address, and information about your health, race, national origin, photographs and/or video recordings of you and, sometimes, genetic information, among other things. Your data will be processed for the purpose of conducting the trial, applying for the approval of a new pharmaceutical product, and, if applicable, for other purposes as specified in the pertinent declaration of consent for the study.

For your own protection and privacy, such data is processed in pseudonymous form wherever possible, which means using a number and/or letter code instead of your name to identify you. However, there are occasions where Merz and its partners conducting the study may need to view your identified personal data in order to ensure the study is scientifically valid, or to protect your health and safety. Anyone who views your identified personal data during a clinical trial is obligated to hold this information in strict confidence.

Service Providers

Usually, Merz partners with a clinical research organization ("CRO"), which organizes and conducts the clinical trial on Merz's behalf. The trial is carried out under the supervision of a clinical investigator. The investigator and the CRO will both have access to your personal data for study purposes. Sometimes, other third parties will receive participant personal data, such as laboratories, statisticians, and related providers whose services are necessary to properly conduct the study. Merz and its study partners agree by contract to ensure the personal data will be lawfully processed and that both Merz and its study partners comply fully with applicable data protection laws.

Onward Transfers

Where an application for approval of a pharmaceutical product is concerned, your pseudonymous data may be forwarded to a governmental authority responsible for the approval process. If adverse effects (unintended unfavourable outcomes) occur, your data may be forwarded to the competent ethics commission and to the authority responsible for receiving the corresponding reports. If you expressly consent to it, your personal data collected during the trial may be transferred to your private physician to ensure continuity of care.

Data Retention

If the study in which you participate relates to a product approved for sale, Merz is legally obligated to retain the clinical study data, including your personal data, for the life of the product on the market plus twenty years. If the trial comes to an end or is terminated prematurely, Merz must retain the study data, including your personal data, for a period of at least ten years, and sometimes longer, as prescribed by law. The data will be erased at the end of the applicable retention period.

Job Applicants

General Information

Thank you for your interest in working for Merz. We safeguard your personal data throughout our application process. Merz processes all personal data that you provide in your application, including any attachments sent, for the purpose of considering your candidacy for employment. This data includes your name and contact information, the information in your CV or resume, your job preferences, and your profile. If you have a LinkedIn profile, Merz will process the data you choose to share on LinkedIn, as well. Merz processes these data to the extent required to carry out the application process, i.e., enter into a contract with you.

If you use one of our online job boards, before submitting your first application, you will be asked to set up a profile and provide us with information, including your email address, contact details, information on your professional and educational career, specific information on your preferred field of work, etc. In this profile, you will be able to upload your CV and related documents. The legal basis for this processing is taking necessary steps to enter into a contract with you.

Merz will also collect and store data about the device and system used to access the job board, including the type of browser, the browser version, the operating system used, the website from which the Merz website is accessed, the Merz website sub-pages that are accessed, the date and time of such access, the internet protocol address (IP address), and the internet service provider. Merz uses this information to render our website accessible, to identify and remedy any technical problems that may arise, and to prevent and, if necessary, take action against any abuse of our services. Merz also analyses anonymous data for statistical purposes and to improve our job board. The legal basis for this processing is Merz's legitimate interest.

Data Retention

If you are a European resident, personal data collected as part of the application process will be stored for a maximum of six months from the date the position was filled. For non-European residents, the retention period varies under local law. If you consent to allow Merz to retain your data for longer than the applicable retention period, we will retain it according to the terms of your consent. As always, you have the right to withdraw your consent without negative affect and without affecting the lawfulness of processing based on consent before its withdrawal by contacting the data privacy officer for your country listed in the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice.

For additional information on cookies and other technical tools and plug-ins we use on our websites, please see the Merz Commercial Website Visitors section above.

Suppliers, Vendors, or Business Partners

If you have any other type of business relationship with Merz, for example if you are employed by one of our suppliers or distributors, then Merz will process identifying personal data about you, for example, first and last name, title if applicable, job title, industry and company affiliation and contact information. Merz processes this information in order to establish or maintain business relations with your company. The legal basis for this processing is Merz's legitimate interest in partnering with suppliers and vendors to provide its products and services.

As a rule, we collect this data directly from you if and to the extent that you convey it to us (e.g., in email signatures, letterheads of business correspondence or business cards). Merz may occasionally also receive personal data concerning you from your employer or from third parties, for example through recommendations from customers, suppliers, or other business contacts.

Your data is also passed on to other Merz companies within the scope of our vendor and supply chain management systems. This is done for purposes of easily locating you or the company to which you belong, and of determining the status that you or the company to which you belong has within our systems.

If your data is transferred outside the EU/EEA, then Merz will ensure the lawfulness of the transfer via the mechanisms described in the International Transfers of Personal Data section found later in this Notice.

Data Retention

Unless otherwise stated in this Notice, we erase your personal data when it is no longer needed for the purposes for which it was processed and if the retention periods prescribed by law have expired. Contractually relevant data are usually erased ten years after the termination of the respective contract with Merz.

Transfers of Personal Data to Third Parties

Merz relies on the support of specialized technical service providers for the technical processing of personal data. In individual cases, Merz works with companies and other entities that have special expertise in specific areas or subject knowledge (such as tax auditors, lawyers, and consulting firms, for example). These service providers are carefully selected and are legally and contractually committed to ensuring a high level of data protection.

Merz will only pass on personal data to third parties for purposes other than those specified in this Notice if there is a legal obligation to do so or if you have provided your express consent to such disclosure.

Merz does not sell personal information as defined in the California Consumer Privacy Act.

International Transfers of Personal Data Outside the EU/EEA Within Merz

At times, personal data may be transferred from within the European Union (“EU”) or European Economic Area (“EEA”) to other Merz companies or service providers located in countries that are outside the EU or EEA and that, according to the European Commission, do not offer an “adequate level of data protection.” For such transfers, Merz enters into the European Commission’s standard contractual clauses (“SCCs”) with the recipient and ensures compliance with the special requirements on transfers of personal data to such countries. Where necessary, Merz will take appropriate supplementary measures to ensure essentially equivalent level of data protection to that guaranteed in the EEA, in accordance with European Data Protection Board (“EDPB”) recommendations. A list of all Merz companies and their locations is provided in the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice.

The SCCs can be accessed at <http://data.europa.eu/eli/dec/2010/87/oj> and <https://eur-lex.europa.eu/eli/dec/2004/915/oj>.

Merz also complies with the cross-border data transfer and export control laws of non-European countries within which it operates.

Your Data Protection Rights

If you would like detailed information about the data Merz stores about you, you can contact us using the email appropriate for your geographic region as provided in the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice, or by contacting our global privacy office at dataprivacy@merz.com or dataprotection@merz.de. You may also request to receive information about any data that you have provided to Merz in accordance with applicable law in a structured, commonly used, and machine-readable format, or you may also request that we submit such information to a third party.

If you discover that personal information that has been stored about you is incorrect or incomplete, you may request that such data be immediately corrected or completed at any time. If the requirements stipulated in Article 17 and 18 of the GDPR are met, you may also request the erasure of your personal data or that processing of it be restricted. You also have the right to lodge a complaint with the relevant supervisory authority for data protection issues in the area where you live.

If Merz processes your personal data based on our “legitimate interests” per Article 6, Paragraph 1, Point (f) of the GDPR, you can object to the processing by telling us how our processing violates your rights in your unique situation. If you object, we must provide you with evidence of our legitimate business need to do so and the measures we have taken to protect your fundamental rights and freedoms. If you object, we will stop processing your personal data unless we can demonstrate compelling legitimate grounds for the processing, which overrides your interests, rights, and freedoms or for the establishment, exercise, or defence of legal claims. If you are objecting to direct marketing by us, we will honour your request and cease such marketing.

You can contact us as specified in the Contact Information section at the end of this Notice.

Contact Information

If you have any questions about how Merz processes personal data or about exercising your rights as a data subject, you can contact Merz at any time.
